Says Jack, "my favorite day of the year is back. shadow of the city is the festival i dreamed about having when i was a kid in new jersey having to take the bus to NYC to see music. this is year 3 and we are getting another step closer to what we've always wanted to do with shadow of the city - be something separate from other festivals. 1 stage, 1 day, small capacity and actually affordable for people. half of the artists are new jersey artists which means a great deal to me to celebrate the culture of my home state. there is no place more special to me than the jersey shore. here's to year 3! can't wait to see you!"

About Jack Antonoff

Jack Antonoff is a three-time Grammy® Award-winning singer, songwriter, musician, and producer, as well as the creative force behind Bleachers. After serving as lead guitarist in multi-platinum band fun., Antonoff launched his solo project Bleachers in 2014 with the critically acclaimed debut album Strange Desire. The album found him setting emotional meditations on anxiety, depression, and loss against a backdrop of earworm melodies and massive choruses on songs like the gold-certified “I Wanna Get Better” (which topped Billboard’s Alternative chart) and the #3 Alternative radio hit “Rollercoaster.” Antonoff toured the world for a year and a half in support of Strange Desire, building a cult fan base for his cathartic, suburban influenced anthems. Antonoff recently released Bleachers’ second album, Gone Now on RCA Records.

Bleachers’ first single off of Gone Now entitled “Don’t Take The Money”, is currently in the Top 10 at Alternative Radio. The band performed the song at the outdoor stage on Jimmy Kimmel Live! (Click HERE to watch), most recently on The Tonight Show Starring Jimmy Fallon (Click HERE to watch), and released the music video (Click HERE to watch). Bleachers will also be performing on Good Morning America’s Summer Concert Series on Friday, August 11th on ABC.

In addition to his work with Bleachers, Antonoff is an in-demand songwriter and producer for other artists, including Taylor Swift (he co-wrote and co-produced three songs on Swift's Grammy®-winning album 1989 including out of the woods), Sara Bareilles (co-writing her Grammy®-nominated hit "Brave"), Zayn (co-writing and producing his No. 2 Hot 100 duet with Taylor Swift “I Don’t Wanna Live Forever”), Sia, Tegan & Sara, Carly Rae Jepsen, Troye Sivan, Grimes, and, most recently Lorde, having co-written and co-produced her new single “Green Light” and her highly anticipated new album, Melodrama.

Antonoff also founded and curated the annual “Shadow of the City” music festival, which takes place in Antonoff’s home state of New Jersey in the parking lot of the Asbury Park Stone Pony. In addition, this year Simon & Schuster will publish Antonoff’s first book, Record Store — a heavily illustrated anthology of essays, interviews, photographs, and ephemera that will pay tribute to the cherished and endangered cultural institution.

Antonoff is also a passionate advocate for Planned Parenthood and LGBTQ rights, having recently collected signatures from 142 high-profile artists, writers, and creators to deliver a message to legislators in Texas considering anti-LGBTQ laws. He is a co-founder of The Ally Coalition (TAC), which encourages allies of the LGBTQ community to take action for LGBTQ equality and support its causes. TAC has raised hundreds of thousands of dollars over the last few years for local LGBTQ homeless shelters around the US.
