Brooklyn, NY-based artist TOMI today shared “Coming Around,” the third single from her new EP, What Kind Of Love, out May 18th via RCA Records. Listen HERE. TOMI explains: “‘Coming Around’ was written in a hut in the middle of the jungle while I was sick with the flu. This was one of the most challenging sessions I’ve ever had, mainly because I had lost my voice. In the months leading up to my songwriting trip to Nicaragua, I was partying too much, experiencing a lot and channeling it all into my music. The cycle seemed like it was working until the final high reached that inevitable low. This song is what pulled me out of the darkness: ‘It’s coming back, coming back around.’”

“Coming Around” follows the release of additional EP tracks “Every Morning I Feel Like Running Away” and the anthemic title track, “What Kind Of Love.” Read more about TOMI at her bio HERE.

On May 12th, TOMI will kick off a two-week tour supporting Amy Shark beginning in Albany, NY. She will end the west coast run with a headlining show at LA’s The Echo on May 29th. Tickets for all shows are on-sale now. A current itinerary is below.
