Labrinth has released his new single “Something’s Got To Give” via Syco Music / RCA Records. The song comes from his eagerly anticipated second studio album due for release later this year. A sinuous, throbbing dance tune, charged with brass, Labrinth explains, “I wanted to create a song in the journey of my album that encapsulated the feeling of betting your whole life on something, and being close to giving up before the big payoff.”

2019 has been a big year for Labrinth. In addition to his ambitious undertaking with scoring and contributing original music to one of 2019’s biggest shows in HBO’s Euphoria, the last year also saw the formation of supergroup LSD (Labrinth, Sia, Diplo) who released an album in April. The British singer, songwriter, and producer also wrote and worked with Beyonce for the song "Spirit", the lead single in the new live-action Lion King movie. Other past collaborations include work with Nicki Minaj, Eminem, The Weeknd, Ed Sheeran among others. His upcoming album Imagination & The Misfit Kid is due later this year and includes already released singles "Miracle", "Mount Everest" and "All For Us" ft. Zendaya.
