About Mark Ronson

Mark Ronson is an internationally renowned DJ and Academy-Award-winning, seven-time-Grammy-Award-winning and Golden Globe-winning artist and producer.

Ronson spent the first eight years of his life growing up in London, England before moving with his family to New York City. Already a keen student of music, and a huge fan of hip hop, he was 16 when he first began creating mixtapes and trying his hand at DJing.

That early passion set him on a path to music production, recording and songwriting that has resulted in a career highlighted by work on a multi Grammy-winning album by Amy Winehouse, as well as his own Grammy-winning, global smash hit with Bruno Mars, "Uptown Funk." Along with releasing four successful albums under his own name, his resume includes production work for some of music's biggest names, including Adele, Paul McCartney, Duran Duran and Lily Allen. More recently, he helmed Lady Gaga's acclaimed fifth album, Joanne and Queens Of The Stone Age's lauded Villains. In 2018 he released a string of singles with Diplo under the name Silk City, including the current world wide hit "Electricity" with Dua Lipa, which earned him a Grammy Award for "Best Dance Recording" in 2019.

He is a co-writer of the song "Shallow," recorded by Lady Gaga and Bradley Cooper for the movie A Star Is Born, for which he earned an Academy Award for "Best Original Song," a Golden Globe Award for "Best Song Written for a Motion Picture," and 2 Grammy Awards.

Most recently Mark collaborated with Miley Cyrus, Camila Cabello, Lykke Li, YEBBA and more for his upcoming fifth studio album Late Night Feelings, which was released in June to rave reviews.

He is currently based in Los Angeles where he operates his record label, Zelig Records, home to fast rising star King Princess. To date, Ronson has 1 Academy Award, 7 Grammy Awards, 2 Brit Awards, 1 Golden Globe Award and 1 MTV VMA Award to his name.
