LOS ANGELES, CA (June 3, 2022) – Following last week’s release of his highly-anticipated new single, pop singer-songwriter Christian French releases the music video for “golden years,” out now via Disruptor Records/RCA Records.

The visual companion to his latest record, which initially gained traction on social media after Christian performed the song on TikTok and garnered over a million views online, the “golden years” video follows Christian and his group of friends as they go through life. From sun-soaked days at the beach to road trips across the country, the video captures the memories and little moments that we often take for granted.

“The ‘golden years’ music video is a collection of good memories from the past, taking you back to what it felt like in late high school, early college - having your first taste of freedom, running around town doing stupid shit with your friends, and falling in love for the first time,” says Christian of the inspiration behind the video. “A lot of the video was shot on 16mm film to capture that ‘in the past’ feel, and all of it leads back to the idea of nostalgia - a longing for things to feel how they used to. My current life doesn’t feel like it’s ‘adding up’ and it feels like my golden years are slipping away from me.”

About Christian French

With over 200 million global streams and praise from TIME Magazine, Billboard, Ones To Watch, American Songwriter, and more under his belt, 25-year-old Christian French is one of today’s fastest-rising indie-pop stars. The Indiana native learned to play piano by watching YouTube and posting covers online, eventually going on to write music in college before chasing his dreams to Los Angeles. It was there in 2017, while sleeping on friends’ couches, that he penned his first single, “love ride,” which amassed over 33 million streams worldwide and set the tone for his bright future.

Touring nationwide with Chelsea Cutler and Quinn XCII, followed by his own headlining tour, Christian released his a series of EPs including natural colors, bright side of the moon, and good things take time, followed by the singles “avalanche” and “OH WELL” in 2021, embodying a more confident sound that straddled pop and rock without losing the clarity of its predecessor. Over the past year, Christian has continued to further hone his sound and identity, learning how to play guitar and produce, in addition to expanding his fanbase through social media. With more music set for release this year, Christian French is poised to usher in a bright new sound and sense of self.
